Avery Cinder has gotten very little she's wanted out of life. But with a scholarship to BYU and a membership to a church that suits her better than she imagined, Avery's life is definitely turning around. With tattooed arms and worn out boots, she doesn't exactly blend into the conservative school, but after a day or two in her new political science classes, Avery knows she chose well.

Aaron Price has gotten almost everything he's ever asked for. But when the girl everyone assumes he'll marry, ends up not being the one, Aaron swears off dating--at least until graduation. It's okay. He's found a new friend in Avery, and she doesn't mind helping his pathetic scheme to use her to keep the girls away.

Problem is, the more time Aaron spends with Avery, the more he realizes she might be the one. And falling in love with your best friend isn't as easy as one might think...
