Ancient Monuments of the Mississippi Valley E.H. Davis E.G. Squier

This is a photocopied reproduction of the classic book Ancient Monuments of the Mississippi Valley written by E.G. Squier and E.H. Davis in 1848. The book was originally published in the Smithsonian Institution Contributions to Knowledge, Volume 1, 1848. This reproduction contains 376 pages and is soft-bound with heavy paper covers, stapled pages and a taped spine - suitable as a library reference. Produced and sold by William R. Corliss and the Sourcebook Project. This is a low-cost approach to owning this unique and classic archeological work. This is one of the most remarkable archeological books ever published in America. Its appearance in 1848 created a great sensation. For, as America moved west, the remnants of the great civilization of Moundbuilders raised much speculation. Even today we marvel at their immense, flat-topped temple mounds, the huge earthen enclosures, and the meticulously wrought artifacts of copper, mica, and clay. Squier and Davis objectively described the features of this New World civilization in words and drawings. It is the drawings, though, that really capture the reader. They are superb, almost overwhelming. The book's table of contents listed below describes the great breadth of this classic archeological treasure.

I:General Observations on the Ancient Monuments of the Mississippi Valley II:Earthworks; Enclosures; Works of Defence III:Sacred Enclosures IV:Monuments of the Southern States V:Monuments of the Northwest VI:Earthworks; The Mounds; Mounds of Sacrifice VII:Mounds of Sepulture VIII:Temple Mounds IX:Anomalous Mounds; Mounds of Observation; Stone Heaps X:Remains of Art Found in the Mounds; Pottery and Articles of Clay XI:Implements of Metal XII:Ornaments of Metal XIII:Implements of Stone, Etc.
